

San Jamar Reveals Innovative New Application for Sani Station™ Cleaner

Just in time for post-pandemic reopening, San Jamar extends use of Sani Station™ chemical to clean and sanitize hard surfaces

ELKHORN, Wis., - June 2, 2020 – Timely for businesses grappling with requirements for safely reopening their doors to customers, San Jamar, a CFS Brands company, revealed that the chemical used in its existing Sani Station™ product can also clean and sanitize hard surfaces. The chemical is FDA, EPA, and NSF D2 approved.

Simply mix the conveniently packaged chemical with the prescribed quantity of water in a spray bottle to clean or sanitize hard surfaces. San Jamar offers the chemical alone or as a kit with a spray bottle, instruction label, and test strips included.

In its original application, Sani Station combines a pre-packaged chemical with water in a countertop or wall-mounted container as a convenient and effective kitchen utensil cleaner and sanitizer.

“As world economies reopen for business, the risk of COVID resurgence weighs heavily on us all. I am proud that our development team rapidly developed the tools our customers need to throw open their doors and thrive,” said Trent Freiberg, President & CEO, CFS Brands.

Katie Babcock, CFS Brands Director of Product Development, commented, “Our San Jamar brand promise is ‘smart, safe, and sanitary,’ and this product extension translates those promises to our customers from their kitchen through their entire operation.”
